GENESIS

The University School of Foreign Languages (USOFL) is one of the oldest Foreign Languages Departments in India. The University School of Foreign Languages (USOFL) was established in March 1972, and was attached to the DOSR in English. Subsequently, the University School of Foreign Languages acquired autonomy and independent status in March 1977.

The University School of Foreign Languages offers a variety of courses. It offers FOUR levels of PART-TIME courses in SEVEN major Foreign Languages which can be completed within two years. This caters to the students interested in pursuing Higher Studies abroad, as well as gives them an opportunity to learn foreign languages while pursuing their Degree. The Department also plans to offer exclusive short-term courses for students pursuing other fulltime degree courses. In such cases, the School issues Course Completion Certificate.

Usually, the classes in the Department are held in the afternoon between 4:00 pm to 8:30 pm. In exceptional cases, classes are held in the mornings and weekdays if the situation demands.

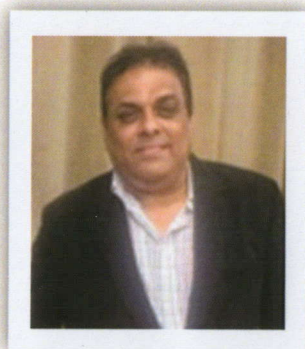

The University School of Foreign Languages is perhaps the First Foreign Languages Department in India to introduce Machine (Computer And Web-Aided) Translation at Diploma Level as early as 2002.

At present, by developing unique forms of self-learning software, the Department seeks to enable the students to hone their skills in foreign languages. The USOFL trains students in achieving competence in the Target Language. Thus, students with basic knowledge of a foreign language will be able to use free on-line translation services and communicate in those languages.
